

NCSEAA's Default Rate Is Among The Lowest In The Nation

NCSEAA works closely with borrowers, with the lender College Foundation, Inc. (CFI), and with colleges and universities to prevent defaults in the Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP). Historically, NCSEAA has had one of the lowest default rates in the nation.

In February 2008 the U. S. Department of Education announced the draft cohort default rates for federal fiscal year 2006 for guaranty agencies participating in FFELP. The cohort default rate is a calculation showing the percentage of borrowers whose loans entered repayment during the period October 1, 2005 through September 30, 2006 and whose loans defaulted prior to October 1, 2007. NCSEAA's draft cohort default rate of 1.54% is one of the lowest in the nation among the 35 guaranty agencies. Official, final cohort default rates are announced in the summer.

NCSEAA's "trigger default rate" also continues to be extremely low. A "trigger default rate" is the ratio between the net amount of reinsurance received by a guarantor on default claims in a given fiscal year and the dollar amount of loans in repayment as of the end of the prior fiscal year. In January 2008 the U. S. Department of Education announced NCSEAA's "trigger default rate" for federal fiscal year 2007 as 1.00%, one of the lowest in the nation among all 35 guaranty agencies.
